

Employee Spotlight

Marcus Timbol

Customer Services
and Transport Manger
Joined PIC in 2011

What was your career path prior to PIC?

While growing up, I used to go with my father (who is a veterinarian) to his consultancy swine farms in Batangas. There were lot of vet sales representatives visiting him at home doing sales calls having fancy new vehicles. So while growing up, I wanted to be a veterinarian and hopefully enter sales. Unfortunately, I was not able to enter UP (my father's alma mater) but DLSU-Dasmarias where I took up Agri-business Management. Afterwards, I worked as a vet sales rep in a local company distributing vitamin mineral premix, injectables and some biologicals, before applying to PIC.

What made you want to work at PIC?

I was unemployed after graduation, and I was always driving for my Dad who at that day was attending the monthly meeting of the National Federation of Hog Farmers, Inc., in Fontana in Clark economic zone in Pampanga. PIC was the sponsor for that meeting. I was impressed with PIC's presentation and thought that it would be great to probably work for this company, but thought they would probably hire scientist or something alike and probably throw my resume in the trash. Fast forward a couple of months, I saw a friend I knew back when I was still in high school as he frequented our house to talk to my Dad. He said that PIC is expanding and is looking for people and encouraged me to apply. The rest was history.

Do you have any recommendations to potential newbies who want to be in the industry/company?

Don't be shy to get down and dirty. Experience is the best teacher. To be someone, you have to start somewhere. If you want to be challenged, we never run out of things to do here. You are in the right place.

“If you want to be challenged, we never run out of things to do here.”